Introduction

The Arrow experience can be likened to a section of railway track. The rails represent the guided reading and coaching which run in parallel through the entire program. The residential act as the sleepers, spaced throughout the program, bearing the greatest part of the cognitive input and providing a connection between the guided reading and coaching. The gravel in between might be easily overlooked but it symbolizes the opportunity for action-reflection, which is where this journal comes in.

The ability to reflect as part of a learning process is an invaluable skill that will assist you in your learning journey. Some people love the opportunity for unstructured reflection and can use their observations to draw insightful conclusions about what they are learning and about how they will use this in their leadership practice. Others may benefit from a more structured approach to reflection. This journal will provide you with opportunity for both structured and unstructured reflection.

Activities relating to each module of Arrow Leadership are included in this journal. Completion of these activities will assist you to apply your learning to your ministry and leadership practices. This journal is to be shared your coach and should form the basis of some of your coaching discussions.
Your Coach

During Arrow, you will have the opportunity to meet with a coach on a regular basis. This coaching aims to help you integrate all you are learning through the Arrow Leadership Program into the whole of your life. There are four key objectives for Arrow coaching:

1. Ensuring participants see the links between their world and what they are learning.
2. Helping participants evaluate the impact of what they are learning on their behaviour
3. Encouraging the formation of development plans based on this learning, with a bias toward their strengths
4. Reviewing progress of the implementation of those development plans.

The Arrow coach will come alongside you as a participant for the duration of the program (a little over 21 months), creating a relationship of accountability in which the coach promotes reflection and self-awareness.

In the learning cycle, there are four key elements as shown in this diagram. The Arrow coach will provide a sounding board for the participant, mainly in the areas of reflection and insight (This is different from a skills based coach who would give input and ideas on particular skill areas).

The Arrow coach will help you to develop lifelong skills in self-awareness and development, leaving him or her with a set of disciplines that will help you throughout your life and that you can pass on to others.

Instructions

This journal is designed for regular reflection and you are expected to record your reflections on a regular basis (e.g. once each week). You also may wish to record your own unstructured thoughts about this learning program.

This week consider ways that your leadership style is working well for you. Ask yourself, what do I do that produces the best, most enduring, long-term results? How can you do more of that?

In what area of your leadership do you currently feel least effective? What might you do address that issue? (NB This could be a great question to address with your coach.)

Complete the reflection questions at the end of Chapter 4 and 5.

How does the cross help you to face the reality of how you’re currently living your life?

What do you sense is God’s secondary calling on your life at this moment?

Ask someone you trust to read this chapter and to suggest where you are on each of the gauges.

How do I feel, knowing that God has a purpose for my life?

What is the best way for me to discern that purpose? Who can help me in the process?

module - Discerning Vision

readings for Discerning Vision

- Growing Leaders, James Lawrence

specific reflections for Discerning Vision

Complete the reflection questions at the end of Chapter 6 & 7.

Meditate on Jesus’ life through one of the Gospels, or select one encounter there. What one aspect of his character do I sense that God is longing to form in me?

If there is unforgiveness in my life, what am I going to do to resolve it?

Who could I ask to give me some honest feedback on my character?

What does it mean for me to know that one day God will welcome me into his heaven?

What godly change do I sense God may want to bring into my life at this time?

This week consider areas where you are most wanting to strengthen and develop.

What are the steps that I need to take to develop that?

2. Ask yourself, what area of my work has the greatest latent potential that, if I intentionally developed it right now, is going to produce the most beneficial results?

What are the steps that I need to take to develop that?

2. Who are those in your Arrow group do you feel led to journey with for a little longer?

3. What is the one area of growth you are most proud of during the past two years and why?
